

CASE STUDY

Executive Protection Threat Monitoring

Summary

Provision of online monitoring of threats to support the protection of a High-Net-Worth Individual.

Situation: The client is a senior executive with considerable investments in several sectors, including the energy, sport and leisure sectors. The client's investments had generated opposition from political activists, environmental protestors and Ultra sports fans. On occasion, opposition had manifested in threats indicating a risk to the client's personal security. The client required a solution that was low profile with no physical security requirement.

Method: The monitoring of multiple open-source and social media data sources and accessing the 'deep' and 'dark' web allowed RMR to identify potential threats to the client. RMR collated and evaluated overt, publicly available but difficult to find, information. Identified threats were analysed, prioritised, and communicated to the client, to be managed appropriately.

Outcome: The monitoring service alerted the client to several threats in a timely manner enabling them to contact the platforms where threatening messages were published and enact other risk management responses.

The client was able to draw on additional RMR knowledge and expertise for physical security risk surveys of offices and residences, advice on personal security and access to protective security teams, should the threat increase.

Risk Management Resources

Threat Monitoring Services

Services Delivered

- 24/7 online monitoring of threats using powerful search software with the ability to sift multiple data feeds in 'real time' to identify and prioritise threats
- Structured analytical approach to evaluate the data against the identified critical information requirements
- Production of analysis to a format and frequency determined by the client
- Production of summary reporting detailing the volume and velocity of collected threat data and how it has evolved over time
- On-call support to respond to client's requirements and concerns

Our approach offered:

- Comprehensive data collection and analysis
- A low profile solution that was not intrusive to the principal or draw unnecessary attention
- The use of the information and analysis to inform other decision-making (legal, public relations, operations)
- The client complete control to task and refocus monitoring based on their priorities.